John Petrides was a guest on Money Life with Chuck Jaffe (on 10.7.2024). John and Chuck discuss diversification strategies in today's market and where to find potential value.

John says that while the market has gotten to all-time highs riding large-cap growth stocks for roughly seven years, there are undercurrents changing beneath the surface that will make diversification pay off in 2025. He notes that the market can go through a soft landing scenario while changing market leadership and he thinks the market can avoid a major downturn provided that inflation doesn't prove much stickier than expected and if earnings prove to be weaker than they currently appear.
