

Tocqueville Welcomes Alexander Stock

BY PAUL KLEINSCHMIDT ON MARCH 15, 2021

Tocqueville Asset Management today announced that Alexander Stock has joined the firm as portfolio manager. He will work closely with senior portfolio manager Joseph Piropato.

“We are delighted that Alex has joined Tocqueville,” said Piropato, who is also a member of the firm’s management committee. “Over the past twelve years I have had the pleasure of knowing him and following his career path. He is a person of high integrity and has a commitment to building trusted relationships. His recent experience working in Asia will bring a valuable perspective to Tocqueville’s investment practice.”

Most recently Alex spent three years in Hong Kong with CIGP, a Swiss-based family office platform and asset management firm where he co-managed portfolios, directed research and set the firm’s investment strategy. Previously, he was a Vice President and equity research analyst with Bank of America Private Bank (formerly known as U.S. Trust), in New York. Mr. Stock holds a Bachelors of Science degree in Finance from Bentley University and an MBA from The University of Hong Kong. He also studied at the London School of Economics and Fudan University. Mr. Stock is a member of the Foreign Policy Association.
