Why Everything Everywhere All at Once isn’t just a movie — it’s the market: John Petrides’ Interview for Quartz’s “Smart Investing” series

December 23, 2024

https://tocqueville.com/wp-content/uploads/2024/12/John_Petrides_Interview.mp4

In a recent interview for Quartz’s “Smart Investing” series, John Petrides draws parallels between the movie “Everything Everywhere All at Once” and the current state of the financial markets.

Just as the film navigates multiple universes, investors today face a multitude of market scenarios, from small caps to healthcare. Petrides emphasizes the importance of diversification and strategic planning to effectively manage this complexity.

For a deeper dive into these insights, read the full article here.

This link is provided for informational purposes only and does not constitute an endorsement by Tocqueville Asset Management, LP (Tocqueville) of the linked website or its content. We are not responsible for the accuracy, legality, or content of the linked website, and your access to it is at your own risk. This linked interview reflects the views of the speaker as of the date or dates cited and may change at any time. The information should not be construed as investment advice. No representation is made concerning the accuracy of cited data, nor is there any guarantee that any projection, forecast or opinion will be realized. References to stocks, securities or investments should not be considered recommendations to buy or sell. Past performance is not a guide to future performance. Securities that are referenced may be held in portfolios managed by Tocqueville or by principals, employees and associates of Tocqueville, and such references should not be deemed as an understanding of any future position, buying or selling, that may be taken by Tocqueville.